Tours and Touraine (France) remained until the 16th century a continual stay of the kings and Court. The permanent return of the Court towards Paris then Versailles marked the beginning of a slow but permanent decline in the 18th century. The arrival of the railroad in the 19th century saved the city by making it an important crossroads.

Description

The collection consists of approximately 100 miscellaneous 18th-century French documents. The bulk are engrossed copies of notarial documents (1770-1789) concerning land titles and rents in the parish of Saint Christophe, Tours. Many of the documents were prepared by François-Claude Bigot and François Solomon, public notaries in Tours. Also included is a record book of financial receipts and livestock lists (1815-1816). Also present is a document, signed by Louis XIV, in favor of Pierre Vaillant.
