The Modern Greek Studies Association (MGSA) is an American-based nonprofit organization of scholars, students, and philhellenes established in 1968 for the purpose of promoting modern Greek studies in language, modern and Byzantine literature, history, politics, and social science in the United States, Canada, and Greece. The Journal of Modern Greek Studies is published semi-annually by the Johns Hopkins University Press, beginning with Vol. 1, No. 1 in June 1983, and focuses on Greek social, cultural, literary, and political affairs from the late Byzantine Empire to the present.

Description

The collection consists jointly of the files of the Modern Greek Studies Association (MGSA) and its official publication, the Journal of Modern Greek Studies. The files of the MGSA include correspondence of Edmund Keeley, president (1970-1973 and 1980-1981), and others, material on symposiums, membership, and fundraising. Also present are printed bulletins, 1969-1988, and four audiotapes of a Greek symposium in 1969.

The files of the Journal of Modern Greek Studies consists of the correspondence of its editors, William Hardy McNeill (1983-1985), Ernestine Friedl (1986-1990), Peter Bien (1990-1999), and Stratos Constantinidis (2003-), which includes many drafts and copies of manuscripts of articles, translations, verse, and stories by various, mostly Greek, authors submitted for consideration for publication in the journal. Many of the submitted manuscripts are accompanied by readers’ reports.
